Fuse.Cloud Hires Emily Moore as Customer Success Manager

Moore Brings Experience and Enthusiasm to the Company's New Client-focused Role

JACKSON, Miss. — February 8, 2017 — Fuse.Cloud, a leading provider of cloud-based technology solutions, announced today that Emily Moore has joined the company to serve in the role of customer success manager. Moore brings experience from both media and non-profit organizations to Fuse.Cloud. In this position, Moore will be responsible for managing relationships within the company's 1,500+ member existing customer base. This includes overseeing all satisfaction efforts and ensuring an exceptional experience for Fuse.Cloud customers.

"With a new name, fresh vision and extended service portfolio all launched in 2016, we feel like there is no better time to make an extra effort to better understand the needs of our customers," said Laura Johns, vice president of marketing and corporate development at Fuse.Cloud. "We want customer success to continue to be something we are known for in the industry, and I think Emily is the perfect person to help us carry that into 2017."

Prior to joining the company, Moore was a reporter and producer for both WLOX in Biloxi and 16 WAPT News in Jackson. She also worked as a public relations strategist for The Cirlot Agency, a global brand strategy and integrated communications firm. Moore most recently served as the director of communications for a statewide non-profit agency.

"I am thrilled to join Fuse.Cloud during such an exciting time in the life of the company, and I look forward to having the opportunity to serve all of the businesses who have contributed to the company's success thus far," said Moore.
